Report on “Embedded Systems “work shop

Introduction:

The “Embedded Systems Workshop” was a comprehensive educational event focused on enhancing participants understanding of embedded systems design, development and applications. It was one week workshop started on 21-august to 26-august at stimulation lab. electrical and electronics engineering block in Anil Neerukonda Institute of Technology & Sciences and conducted by EEE department with help of APSSDC. Object of this report is to provide complete information regarding workshop activities, key takeaways and its significance in enhancing knowledge in embedded systems.

Workshop’s Overview:

The work was happened in six days with various sessions, hands-on activities virtually and participants are from EEE back ground students and resource persons are from APSSDC having technical back ground.

Agenda and activities:

The workshop agenda is to inculcate variety of topics to provide complete understanding Concepts of embedded systems:
Those topics are

1. Introduction to Embedded systems :

The work starts with a definition of embedded systems .The definition of embedded system is It is a system of combination of hardware and software which perform specific task is called Embedded systems, their characteristics, and their importance in modern technology.

2. Microcontroller Architecture:

An in depth session on microcontroller architecture explored the components, memory, and I/O systems commonly used in embedded system applications. Mostly we used AT895C1 micro controller.

3. Programming embedded systems :

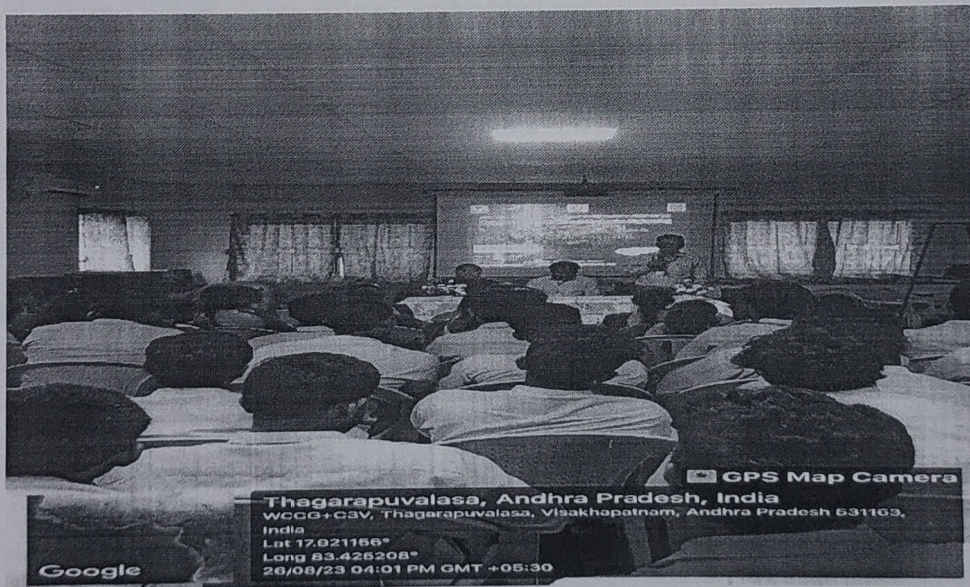

Students learned about programming languages(c/c++ which are used in embedded systems) and tools for developing embedded applications. Hands on coding exercises allowed students to practice writing and debugging code for microcontrollers.

4. Sensors and Actuators:

This session focused on interfacing sensors and actuators with microcontrollers, enabling students to create responsive and interactive embedded systems .we made virtual project on sensor when a sensor detect an object or something LED (light emitting diode) start glowing.

5. Real-time Operating systems (RTOS):

An introduction to RTOS highlighting the importance of managing tasks in real time applications and providing insights into selecting and using RTOS. We made tasks on real time application which is traffic signals, seven segment display and LCD (liquid crystal display etc.

1. Case studies and applications:

Real time case studies were discussed in the last day six days work shop .How an embedded systems plays an key role in our future and how an embedded systems plays an key role in IOT(internet of the things),automotive ,health care and electronics.

2. Project's :

In last day of session of we discuss about real time projects with our resource persons. Some projects like sensors, traffic lights etc

During this six days workshop as a student's we have taken a valuable insights and takeaways.

- Understanding of embedded systems architecture and components.
- We got a clear idea in programming microcontroller using industry -standard languages and tools.
- We have done one task on interfacing sensors and actuators for practical applications.
- In the last day of workshop we know the role embedded systems in day to life. Exposure to diverse real world application of embedded systems.
- Hands on experience through coding exercises and project work.

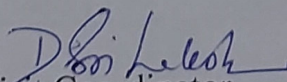

Speaker and presentation Highlights:

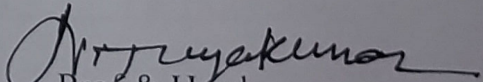

Prof. J. Vijaya kumar (HOD EEE) delivered a speech on real time applications on embedded systems, emphasizing the evolving role of embedded systems in shaping Technological advancements. Before HOD sir speech he asked students feedback on six days long workshop. Some students delivered their own experience on workshop. After the students feedback resource person gave his experience with students and he instruct us.

Conclusion:

The "embedded systems workshop" shows the way to enrich our understanding of embedded systems and their applications. Through informative sessions, hands-on activities, and interactions with experts, students gain valuable insights into designing and developing embedded systems. Finally we shape our future in embedded systems technology.
